PRINCE ALBERT, MARCH 22, 1903

The Dominion Department of the Interior continues to receive from time to time favorable reports from delegates from the United States who have visited the Canadian Northwest. Recently a report was received from a former of Jacksonville, Illinois who, amongst other things, says: "I found that nothing had been overestimated in regard to the quality of the land in cultivation, as the samples of grain I brought home with me and the display of vegetables in the market show. I found men who, eight years ago, had not five dollars to their name, now prosperous farmers, the owners of a quarter section of good land, well cultivated; cattle and horses around them, and, of course, contented and happy. As to the healthfulness of the climate, I can say this, that for two years I had scarcely seen a well day from bilious trouble, and that from the first week, nearly all the symptoms of my complaint vanished, and by the end of the second week I felt like a new man. This is the unanimous verdict of all I met that no region on earth is healthier than the Canadian North west. I think Ponce de Leon searched in the wrong place for the fountain of perpetual youth. I would not advise old people accustomed to a southern climate, and who are reasonably well to do, to remove to an extreme northern country, but young people with a little capital to start on, and who wish to avail themselves of the advantages of a new country, fertile soil, healthy climate, good markets, excellent railroads, unobjectionable neighbors, and nominal taxation has to offer, can find no better place on the continent of America than the Canadian Northwest."

Mr. J. H. Robinson, of St. Thomas did well in telling the joint meeting of labor and agricultural representatives, held in Toronto recently, that the question, "Are you in favor of British connection?" had been submitted to the Dominion Granges and had been answered 99 times in every 100 in the affirmative.

Reports from nine out of twenty-three customs ports in Quebec show that 1,874 French Canadian families returned to Canada last year from the United States, showing that the movement of population is in the right direction, and that New England has ceased to be a paradise to those of our fellow countrymen in Quebec who have a desire to roam.

It is interesting to note that the Canadian organization of the Imperial Federation League now has upon its executive and general council seven Lieutenant Governors, ten Senators, fifty members of the House of Commons, six Ministers of the Crown, two archbishops and six bishops.

The New York Sun gives some very good reasons for annexation—from the United States point of view. It would add to "our arable domain" 10,000,000 acres of the best wheat lands in the world. "It would augment our timber supply" by the most accessible, extensive and valuable white pine forests in the world. It would "secure to us" from Nova Scotia and Vancouver immense deposits of bituminous coal. Finally it would "place in our hands" the largest and most valuable deposit of nickel yet discovered. And Canadians would lose it all, while Great Britain would presumably look on smiling while all these things were taken by a hostile power from the circle of the British Empire.

They are proposing to tax savings banks deposits in New York State. The State Legislatures, under direct taxation, are driven to tax anything they can get hold of. They get nothing from the federal authorities as the Canadian provinces do.

Sir Charles Tupper says that the question of Preferential Trade within the Empire is making great progress in England. The Globe declares it to be utterly impossible, and to be retreating instead of advancing. Which is likely to know best?

A London tourist named Hickson, now in San Francisco, tells probably the truth about the Hawaiian conspiracy when he states that the natives look upon the whole thing as "a force put up by a number of interested persons who happen to have force upon their side."

An American contemporary announces that Clara Spreckels, the sugar heiress, has more than $10,000,000 invested in Hawaii, and then adds that he "is understood to favor annexation." Why, these sugar speculators and a few agitators anxious for notoriety are the only people on the island who do favor it.

The Hon. J. E. Patterson, the new Premier of Victoria, is an Englishman who emigrated to Australia 40 years ago. At home he was a farmer, but today he is Premier of the greatest English Colony in the Southern Hemisphere. Mr. Patterson has in recent years visited England and America, and is well known as a strong upholder of British connection in his adopted country.

A writer in the Michigan Farmer endeavors to explain the present agricultural depression in the United States and its causes. He deals especially with Michigan and concludes that "a large degree of general unrest prevails in the state." Many have grown indifferent to farming and are anxious to quit: "Low prices of farm products, high prices of farm labor, the tendency of young men and women to leave the farm and engage in other kinds of business, the belief that other channels of business offered better facilities for a livelihood; the almost certainty that the agricultural communities were being systematically robbed by railroad combines and monopolies, as well as the apparent fact that the legislation of the country was adverse to farmers' interests and in favor of the moneyed combinations, seemed to be the main causes of complaint." There appears to be a very pronounced moral in all this to Canadian agriculturists of commercial or trade union.

CORRESPONDENCE.

It is not the intention of this column to discuss the merits of the various candidates for the Presidency, but to give the readers of this paper a glimpse of the various points of view on the subject.

CHURCH MATTERS.

To the Editor of The Times.

Dear Sir—It would seem to me that the proper time to adjust any differences that may have arisen in the Church of England.

If the congregation of St. Alban's find they were wrong and ready in their action towards the Bishop, the only course open to them is to apologise and retract.

It, on the other hand, the views of the congregation are unaltered, they have now an opportunity to discuss the matter at the Easter meeting, when, no doubt, the Bishop will be present, this being the first time he has been able to meet the congregation for the purpose of discussion.

Yours obediently,
CHURCHMAN

A PLEA FOR THE GAME IN SASKATCHEWAN.

To the Editor of The Times.

Mr. Editor, I have often written on this subject before, but it seems the game is entirely neglected, as far as Indians are concerned and the protection of game.

Let me bring some plain facts before the residents of Saskatchewan.

Between March 8th and 14th, twenty-eight game birds and four moose, have been run down on the coast and butchered—some of them with clubs. This is comparatively a small piece of country and this is only the commencement of what if the coast continues to be exterminated for the deer tribe. In no instance have I known a white man kill one—except Indians and the butchers who once the last month have been receiving government provisions on their reserves.

Eighteen head were killed by members of John Smith's band last week close to their reserve (within twenty miles) no doubt many of them females, who should have been left to breed.

Are they the original possessors of the land here? No! Not in one single instance, in fact I doubt if a pure blooded Indian could be found on the reserve.

Old H.B. Co's employees and stragglers from all over the North West, immigrated here since the transfer of the Territories to the Dominion and they should as fully consider the game law as any other citizen.

What I will ask is this: are we who help to make the country our permanent home, to sit down and see every head of game destroyed, merely because the frontier Indians under the game law, I say no! and would ask other sportsmen to co-operate with me and see if we cannot form a Vigilance Committee, in our own immediate neighborhood for the protection of game animals which are scarce with young. Contrast the action of the Dominion Government in this matter with the United States.

Early in March some 1000 Elk were surrounded by ranchmen in Colorado and were completely at their mercy; two only were killed for food, and the remainder were left to starve.

A year ago I wrote an article pleading for the Beaver and I fully see a revival of the Beaver in Manitoba, bringing the same thing up in the Press this month.

In the month of February in addition to the deer already mentioned, one land otter was killed for food, and the remainder of the Saskatchewan, this makes seventy-two head already, that I am personally aware of and the best time as the Indians call it is only commencing.

Why I might ask are Indians who are rationed all winter, to be allowed to leave their reserves, at the very time they can do most damage to the game. Moreover, who probably has a larger experience of hunting game than any other individual in the Province, chiefly with wealthy sportsmen, and the government are most short sighted, and are robbing themselves of what it carefully preserved would bring a lot of money into the country. Take the salmon fishery in the Province of Quebec; some rivers rent there for one season as high as $10,000.

If the fish had not been protected what would the rivers be worth to-day. The same applies to our game and I beg all sportsmen to make an effort at once and try and save what game we have left, who I would ask the members elected to the Territorial Legislature to use all the influence they can, and press the matter on the Dominion Government. If some action is not speedily taken our deer, moose and beaver will be like the buffalo, exterminated for good and all.

Your obedient servant,
REGINALD BEATTY.

The Model City Map of the Early American Republic.

The State Historical society was enriched recently by an image of pottery, supposed to be an idol of some prehistoric race, probably the Huron or Iroquois.

The first of the new independent county, Appleton, was set apart from a group of deer-hunters along with a number of scattered human bones, copper arrowheads and broken domestic utensils.

The property of O. W. Munroe, of Strabourgh, Mo. The idol is five inches in diameter. It is rudely constructed, having evidently been formed by hand, or at best very crude tools, from common clay and afterward hardened by being dried in the sun.

The idol represents a human figure in a kneeling posture, the arms extended at the sides. The features are rudely formed, yet, notwithstanding this, are not altogether repulsive, the nose being gracefully aquiline and the lips well formed. The ears are missing, but the remnants show that they were adorned with rings. The only "quantity," and might be said to resemble a head. At the top of the head there is a hole which seems to have a purpose, probably that of fastening a head dress to the figure. The image would hardly be catalogued with the works of art, but it is, nevertheless, an interesting relic.

The race whose deity was represented by this clumsy bit of clay inhabited the Mississippi valley, from the great lakes to the Gulf at a time to which the traditions of man reach not. Who they were, where they came from, what their manner of life was, is all a mystery.

True, many mounds, excavations and burials of this kind have been discovered, but so far they have given but little of their history. That they lived and died before the race of American Indians existed is proven by the fact that the traditions of the latter race contain no references to this lost people, although their mounds and relics are mentioned. Many mounds of this kind are found in Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Indiana, and a few have been discovered in nearly all of the states in the Mississippi valley.

BETTER THAN A CAT.

A Pet Snake That Occupies a Favored Place in a Farmer's Household.

A Niagara county farmer tells of a snake which has been gliding about his premises for the past ten years.

The snake about four feet long, is somewhat round in thickness at the abdomen and has an open and engaging countenance. His companionship was first brought to the farmer's notice by the fact that his pious actions of his son and heir.

The boy one day attempted to kill the family cat, which had long been his favorite pet and developed a marked aversion to the dog. The family was at a loss to explain his peculiar conduct until one day it was discovered that the cat was keeping a snake in his bedroom.

He fed the reptile on milk stolen from the pantry, and took the strange pet to bed with him nights. The parents at first were greatly horrified and wanted to kill the snake, but the boy protested and at last his wishes were regarded.

BUSINESS AND MORALS.

They Have No Convention Now, But Some Day They May Have.

It is a very common thing for people to lament that they did not get rid of this or that property before its value depreciated. Of course, what they are really sorry for is that they could not have contrived to realize their loss on some other else. It is a sign of the imperfection of contemporary benevolence that good people should have such feelings and should regard them as matters of course. They are humanely unchristian, says St. John. The utmost the average contemporary moralist enjoys is that a man shall not "unload" upon his friends. He cannot so much as imagine a scruple about selling out cadaverous stocks in open market.

It will not be so when the millennium comes. Property will continue them, as now, to fluctuate in value, but the prospect of a depression will no longer strike the owner as a good reason for selling out. His superior moral sense will then, as now, be profitable to his estate, since property does not always depreciate as much as is expected, and often in the end it recovers more than it lost. But the great advantage from a business point of view of the perfected altruism will be emancipation of the altruist from panic and all its consequences, since the man who is most ready to accept his loss than to pass it on is not to be scared into a foolish sacrifice by the shadow of it before-hand.

Futility of the Sand Blast.

The use of the sand blast is now found to be a very convenient and effective method of cleaning buildings.

A pump which forces a blast of air at a pressure of four ounces to the square inch through a system of flexible pipes removes the uneven surface of stone readily. One square foot of stone can thus be cleaned in ten minutes and the rate of the process can be increased by the use of a higher pressure. This method has been found to possess many advantages over the use of acid for this purpose. Another, though an older, application of the sand blast is for the whitening of the outside of incandescent lamp bulbs, and decorative effects are often introduced by fastening letters or ornaments upon the outside, such decorations being especially applicable to hotels and such places, where it is desirable that each lamp shall bear the name of the establishment.

Sponge?

WHEN YOU SEE IT.

Probably you couldn't if you were to see one in the natural state. One would, not recognize in the dark—almost black—substance full of mud, sand and shells the light yellow soft affairs of our shops.

The network of elastic fibres which remains behind after the living matter has been removed is the skeleton of the animal which is the sponge of commerce.

There is a great difference in sponges. If you are not a judge come into our store the next time you want something in our line and we will gladly post you. Every kind is represented. We feel we can satisfy you no matter what your needs may be.
